

Dragon Ball Z: The dimensional Journey

by The living genius

Category: Dragon Ball Z

Genre: Adventure

Language: English

Characters: Gohan, OC

Status: In-Progress

Published: 2016-04-11 01:21:52

Updated: 2016-04-11 01:21:52

Packaged: 2016-04-27 19:09:35

Rating: T

Chapters: 1

Words: 904

Publisher: www.fanfiction.net

Summary: In an alternate dimension and time line different than the dragon ball z world we all know two brothers battle it out. They are both of the royal family but only one can inherit a throne as we all know. Watch as some foul play sends Alex, one of the brothers, spiraling through time and dimensions to the Android saga. How will he effect the outcome of earth's future. Read to find out

Dragon Ball Z: The dimensional Journey

Dragon Ball: The fighter's Journey

I don't own Dragon Ball Z

Prologue

Deep within the far reaches of space, far from any planet or any civilization, stood two warriors. On the left was a man with short brown hair that fell down next to his eyes which were red in color. He was dressed in a black body suit with a black armored vest on. He also had armored bracers that extended from his finger tips to just below his elbow. The lower half of his body was covered with armor protecting him against any attacks.

Across from him stood a man with features similar to his but his hair was black and he wore the same suit as him. "I should have know you would try to defy me brother." The brown haired man's eyes were filled with amusement as he said this which only served to anger the other. "Your tyranny will end today Alex!" The black haired one yelled this out angrily.

The now known Alex shook his head from side to side and a red aura burst to life around him. His brother followed suit but his aura was a pale blue color that was smaller in comparison. "James you won't survive this fight if you push me." Alex warned his brother but there wasn't a hint of malicious intent coming from him hinting that he didn't care about the matter entirely.

Not leaving his brother anytime to respond Alex rushed forward and elbowed him across his face. James spun out of control but quickly regained his bearings. Before he could react Alex appeared in front of him with one hand gripping his hair and the other punching him. After delivering one more right hook James let out a burst of Ki sending him back.

Grasping the opportunity he rushed him but Alex blocked his right hook with his elbow before bringing his knee up into his gut. James bent over coughing out a bit of blood that began to float away. Alex slowly pulled back crossing his arms clearly still amused about the situation. " Did you honestly think that this was a good idea, why did you even defy me." Alex cut off his response quickly.

"Oh god don't tell its because your jealous, I don't even want this job there's so much responsibility." His brother stared up at him in anger only making his smirk wider. "If you asked for the kingdom I would have happily handed off to you but no you went and stained our family name with dishonor, you know that I can't allow you to live."

James recovered from the gut shot and reached into his arm guard pulling out a pill. Alex's eyes widen slightly at that and he muttered quietly to himself. "I can't believe you would resort to such things for a transformation." James smirked evilly in response and swallowed it. His aura burst back to life but this time it was changing to raging bright blue color. His hair began to rise in response to the power but fell back down after a second. "I will and you today." James suddenly appeared in front of him delivering a bone crushing elbow to his face sending him flying.

Instead of giving him anytime to recover he appeared behind him and kicked him in his face. At least that was what he intended to do his brother however had different plans. He used his elbow to block the kicked and brung his leg down on the back of James's head stunning him. Flipping himself back upright he flew away from James and began to power up.

"I didn't want to believe it back then but dad was right when he called you a failure, to use supplements to increase your power, how disgusting, let me show you a true transformation." A red Aura began to surround him again but this time it was doubled in size. Unlike James though his hair rose and spiked up staying like that. His pupils began to disappear masking for a more threatening appearance.

"Even with Supplements your power is no where near mine." Alex smirked and appeared in front of the shocked James, grabbing him by the neck. "It doesn't matter." James struggled out confusing Alex. Before he could react James slammed a tag on his neck causing black symbols to expand over his body. Alex released James who began to cough in pain while he screamed in agony. It felt like his body was being torn apart and burnt from the inside.

"W-what did you do?" Alex struggled to speak as a black ball of energy began to swirl around him. " It doesn't matter, your going to die now." James began to laugh maniacally as his aura began to die down. "I-I -I'll will come for when I get the chance." The black energy began to completely swirl around him collapse in on itself defying any rules of logic. "Yes finally, He's gone no one can stop me now.

Alternate Dimension, Different time period

A black ball of energy appeared on a inhabited planet releasing Alex onto the ground in the mountains.

The End

Review and follow let me know what you background will probably be more explained in the next chapter or chapters

End
file.